

Ethical Theory and Honor in Competition and Sport

RIGHT WRONG

The Center for ETHICS* at the University of Idaho offers study, intervention, outreach, consultation, and leadership in developing and advancing the theory, knowledge and understanding of character education including moral and ethical reasoning, moral development, ethical leadership, and ethical application. The Director of the Center for ETHICS* is Dr. Sharon Kay Stoll.

Dr. Stoll featured, briefly, in Paul Turner's piece, "The pigskin vs. the horsehide: Just throwing it out there." Spokesman review, <http://www.spokesman.com/stories/2016/sep/18/just-throwing-it-out-there/>

The Center introduces two new members of the Center for ETHICS*:

Marcis Fennell, Dr. Stoll's 37th doctoral student, has been with the center for over a year now, in his second year in the doctoral program. As a former student-athlete at the University of Idaho, former professional athlete, and former high school coach, Marcis brings a perspective to the Center that is very unique. Marcis received his Bachelor's of Science degree in Sport Science and his Master's of Science degree in Movement and Leisure Sciences from the University of Idaho. Marcis is pursuing a doctorate degree in Character Education and Leadership with an emphasis in Moral Reasoning in Sport. Marcis' experiences has provided him with a passion to positively influence the culture in American sport. His research direction is leading him to assess the moral lessons taught by high school coaches. Upon completion of his degree, Marcis seeks to become a consultant for character education in sport.

Aubrey Shaw, Dr. Stoll's 38th doctoral student, is in her first year doctorate at the University of Idaho in residence here at the Center. Aubrey earned a Master's degree in Movement and Leisure Sciences with an emphasis in Sport Psychology under the guidance of Dr. Damon Burton. Aubrey earned her undergraduate degree in Psychology, also from the University of Idaho. Aubrey also brings a unique perspective to the Center. The different perspective is through disabilities and play. Her research interest is moral development with Paralympic athletes and coaches. Aubrey plans on becoming an advocate for those with disabilities and making a world for them to play and move about.

Up Coming Events

Dr. Stoll along with her two of her doctoral students, Marcis Fennell (37th) and Aubrey Shaw (38th) will be presenting at the Western Society for Kinesiology & Wellness 61st annual conference in Reno, NV, October 12th-14th, 2016.

Dr. Stoll's 37th doctoral student, Marcis Fennell, will be guest lecturing at the University of Central Florida to two undergraduate Intro to Sport Business and Diversity courses within the DeVos program on November 2nd 2016.

Dr. Stoll's 37th doctoral student, Marcis Fennell, will be attending the North American Society for the Sociology of Sport annual national convention in Tampa Bay, FL on November 2nd-5th, 2016.