Dr. Stoll's 39th doctoral student, Mark Sowa attended a Swimposium. The swimposium was held on the University of Idaho Moscow Campus and ran by the Inland empire swimming, in conjunction with USA swimming. The goal of the swimposium was to educate local swim coaches. Distinguished coach Jim Richardson spoke on the influence of neuroscience on training swimmers yet also highlighted the "soft" science and the need for coaches to pay attention to character education as paramount to high performance. Using the work of Carol Dweck and David Epstein, Coach Richardson led a stimulating discussion on hardwired behavior and coach's ability to influence character education.
