

THIS WEEK AT THE CENTER FOR ETHICS*

Friday, March 7, 2008

- Dr. Karen Rickel, graduate from the College and one of ours at the Center, was offered a tenured track assistant professor position at Gonzaga. She was on staff there as an instructor since finishing her degree at Idaho in 2005.
- News on our graduates: Dr. Chelsea Herman is with the Athletic Department of Boise State in Compliance; Dr. Andrew Rudd is an assistant professor in Sport Management at Florida State University; Dr. Lynda Cochran is an assistant professor at Brockport State University; Dr. Jackie Williams is an assistant professor at Slippery Rock; and Dr. Amekula Gwebu who successfully defended his dissertation in January is an Assistant Professor at the University of Iowa. Dr. Cochran, Dr. Gwebu, and Dr. Williams will be presenting separate papers with Drs. Stoll and Beller in April at The Research Consortium, American Alliance of Health, Physical Education, Recreation, and Dance in Fort Worth, TX.
- Three external universities and one professional sport team have solicited our advice and help in doing research in moral reasoning and moral development: Houghton College, Waterford Institute of Technology, Ireland; University of North Carolina Wilmington.
- New curriculum for Atlanta Braves development program is in final stages of review by the Braves
- Dr. Stoll reviewed one article for the Journal of Coaching Education (JCE); and Drs. Stoll and Beller reviewed one article for the International Journal of Sport and Physical Education.
- All newsletters for the Center are online – the newsletters are a means to communicate with all of our CEU students, and contractual programs through Winning With Character. The newsletter offer teaching tips about moral reasoning and moral development as well as general information about the Center, and lastly a monthly story about ethical issues in sport today. See: http://www.educ.uidaho.edu/center_for_ethics
- Student advising and Research outside of Center
 - Dr. Stoll met with four students who wish to pursue their advanced degrees with the Center/College of Education this next year.
 - Dr. Stoll wrote two letters of recommendation for undergraduate and graduate students pursuing job positions.