Dr. Lindsay Bernhagen
Invited Guest Speaker

Inclusive learning experiences don’t just happen; they are made...carefully and with intentionality.

Dr. Lindsay Bernhagen, professor and Director of the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point’s Center for Inclusive Teaching and Learning, leads this timely and engaging session on applied strategies for designing inclusive learning experiences. Dr. Bernhagen holds advanced degrees in Ethnomusicology, Women’s Studies, and Comparative Studies, and is a leading teacher, scholar, and practitioner of inclusive teaching and learning. Her present work includes Diversity and Identity and Power, Position, and the Profession: a two-volume issue of New Directions in Teaching and Learning, with Emily Gravett.
